Employer guide to Egypt's new Labour Law No. 14 of 2025

What changed for employers, plus employee benefits in Egypt for 2026

Labour Law No. 14 of 2025 was issued on 3 May 2025, took effect on 1 September 2025 and repealed Law No. 12 of 2003. The new specialised labour courts started on 1 October 2025. This guide sums up what an employer needs to know, together with the statutory and market-standard employee benefits in Egypt.

2026 updates

- 29 August 2026: the Minister of Labour launched the general rules for private-sector work regulations, one of the executive decisions under Law 14/2025. Align your company's work regulations with them.
- Ministerial Decree No. 270 of 2025 sets new workforce-data reporting requirements to the Ministry of Labour.
- Prime Minister's Decision No. 3165 of 2026 requires the National Wages Council to review the minimum wage at least once a year. The private-sector minimum stays at EGP 7,000 until a new decision.

Contracts and records

- Employment contracts are written in Arabic in four copies; a non-Egyptian employee may also have a copy in their own language. Paper or electronic signature is allowed.
- Employers file a statement of employees and salaries with the Ministry of Labour and update it every January.
- Each employee's file, paper or electronic, is kept for five years after employment ends.
- The law recognises remote work, part-time work, flexible hours and job sharing.
- Non-Egyptians may only be employed with a work licence from the competent ministry.

Probation, termination and resignation

- Probation is capped at three months, once per employee with the same employer.
- Notice on an indefinite contract is three months, regardless of length of service.
- Resignations are ratified by the competent administrative authority and the employer responds within 10 days. Pre-signed, undated resignations are void.
- Fixed-term contract ended by the employer: one month's salary per year of service.
- Disciplinary dismissal requires a ruling from the labour court.

Working hours and overtime

- 8 hours a day and 48 hours a week, with at most 12 hours of presence a day.
- Overtime now needs notification to the Ministry within 7 days instead of prior approval.
- Overtime pay: wage + 35% by day and + 70% at night.

Pay and the annual raise

- Annual periodic raise of at least 3% of the insured wage (Article 12); waivers need National Wages Council approval.
- Private-sector minimum wage: EGP 7,000 a month since 1 March 2025 (latest published National Wages Council decision).
- Training and Qualification Fund: 0.25% of the minimum insured wage per employee, minimum EGP 10 and maximum EGP 30, replacing 1% of net profits.
- Salary payment can be evidenced by bank transfer.

Workplace protection and penalties

- Harassment, bullying and verbal, physical or psychological violence are criminalised, offline or online.
- Fines range from EGP 1,000 to EGP 100,000, and the responsible manager is liable alongside the employer.

What to do now

- Review contracts: Arabic, four copies, three-month notice.
- Update the leave policy (15/21/30/45 days), maternity and paternity leave.
- Build the 3% annual raise into your payroll cycle.
- Prepare the annual employee statement and keep files for five years.
- Align resignation and disciplinary procedures with administrative ratification and the labour courts.
